MOUNT OF THE HOLY CROSS.

Silent, grand and beautiful among the snow-clad peaks of the Rocky Mountains of Colorado on the Leadville Branch of the D. & R. G. R. R., stands the Mount of the Holy Cross. As the train winds around among the wild mountain passes creeping westward and upward towards the point of highest railroad altitude in the world, 11,000 feet above sea level, and as we reach the crest of Fremont Pass, we see the "Snow-White Cross," sublime in its purity, beautiful in its entirety and grand in its immensity. Here for ages past two great canons, crossing each other near the top of the mountain, have ever been filled with snow and ice, forming the most enchanting picture in the world, of the Cross, the emblem of the Christian Faith. Tennessee Pass also affords a fine view of this wonderful sight. Not far from these lonely peaks are found the richest silver mining camps in the world.
